2015 Native Arts Grantee Spotlight

Danielle Morsette

Potlatch Fund Board and Staff raise their hands to grantee Danielle Morsette who is the featured artist on exhibit at the Suquamish Museum. The exhibition will showcase Danielle's rarely seen digital pieces and some smaller weavings. Danielle was initially inspired to learn to weave when she saw a Fran and Bill James blanket displayed at the Suquamish Museum. To now have her own exhibition in the same space is a wonderful accomplishment.

On Friday, August 7th, at 6:30 p.m. in the museum auditorium Danielle will make a presentation addressing her journey as an artist, how she learned to weave and craft original designs. Also, on Friday, September 4th, at 6:30 p.m. in the museum auditorium Danielle will lead a weaving demonstration and take the audience through her creative process.

Danielle has said, "I strive to incorporate both traditional and contemporary design elements. It is important that my work will be recognizably Coast Salish while being truly original." Potlatch Fund congratulates Danielle!

The Suquamish Museum is located at 6861 NE South Street, Suquamish, WA 98392 and open Monday to Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

This framed Shaman's Mask by artist R.W. Adamson is entirely hand crafted and painted. The piece features finger pressed red terra cotta clay and hand strung natural domesticated bird feathers. The Mask is retired and is a very collectible work of art, not only to mask collectors but all art enthusiasts. Arlene Joe and Richard Woo are donating this item to the 2015 Silent Auction. They purchased it approximately ten years ago from the Steilacoom Tribal Cultural Center and the certificate of authenticity is included.

R. W. Adamson, a Utah artist and poet; spent many years researching early Medicine Men in an attempt to gain an understanding of the strength, beliefs, and weaknesses within their practice. Without a common spoken nor written language, they used their own intellect to unmask the mysteries of life. The focus of the silent auction will remain Native art and cultural experiences (such as tours, trips, and storytelling), and as a result be limited to 75 items on a first come, first serve basis.

For more information on providing art or cultural experiences, please use the new email address: auction@potlatchfund.org to contact staff organizing the event. The sooner we receive information about your donation, the longer we have to promote you and your art through our eNewsletter and website.
